TOUR ITINERARY

Mokoro (dugout canoe) experiences are water-level dependent; the classic mokoro season is generally during the high-water months (roughly June–October), though transitional seasons can produce navigable channels in April–May or other years depending on rains upstream. Always check expected water conditions for your travel dates.

Some camps (or certain concessions) permit off-road tracking and night drives — these increase predator-viewing chances but are concession dependent (Mma/Rra Dinare offer such off-road/night drives). Moremi Crossing on the other hand emphasizes walking and water activities but will run drives if conditions require. Please enquiry with us at the time of booking where you will be booked according to date.

Day 1 – Maun (Botswana) to Camp - Transfer with Light Aircraft

On arrival at Maun Airport you will be met by a representative and assisted to your light aircraft for the short scenic flight into the Okavango Delta. Please note that, due to the small aircraft used, luggage must be packed in soft-sided bags to fit safely into the aircraft compartments. A strict limit of 20 kg per person applies, inclusive of camera equipment and hand luggage, and hard cases cannot be accepted. To ensure passenger safety, all guests are required to provide their body weight at the time of booking. Guests weighing over 100 kg may be subject to an additional weight surcharge as stipulated by the charter company.

After a short flight of approximately 20–45 minutes, you will land at the camp’s private airstrip where your guide will be waiting to transfer you to camp. Settle in, enjoy a welcome drink and enjoy a fireside dinner under the stars.

Day 3 / 4 - Predator Tracking Birding

Over the following 2 days, set out on morning activities, before returning to camp for a midday siesta. In the afternoon, we head out once again to enjoy our afternoon activity. The green season transforms the Okavango into a vibrant paradise of colour and life and highlights the spectacular birding for which the season is famous, from carmine bee-eaters to flocks of herons and storks following the waters. Wildlife sightings are often enhanced by dramatic skies and a lush backdrop of wildflowers and grasses.
