Although the temperature drops below 10 degrees in the rainy season, they prefer to settle in this environment. Afterwards, you will drive over the Ngorongoro Crater Rim towards Karatu. On the Ngorongoro Viewpoint you might take the chance to stop for another picture. As you descend into Karatu Farmland, the temperature will rise again.

From the crater rim, you have a great view into the crater bowl before you drive down the steep slope to the crater floor. Always have your camera to hand, because nowhere else is the density of animals higher than here. The crater, which is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, is home to almost all species of East African wildlife.
